acting . modeling . voice over

Christine Scott Bennett grew up in a small town in New Hampshire riding horses and playing soccer throughout her childhood. She started modeling while she was attending Shepherd University where she completed a B.S. in Therapeutic Recreation. Christine continued on to obtain her certification as a NSCA certified personal trainer and completed an internship with children with special needs in St. Petersburg FL. After a few years in the corporate world, Christine decided to move on and pursue her dream of acting. She began studying at The Performers Studio Workshop. After booking a lead role in the National Lampoon movie "Robodoc," she moved out to L.A. where she continues to study with The Groundlings and The Ivanna Chubbuck Studio.
